

WISE AGAINST THE EXPOSITION

Suggests Purchase of Jamestown Island, Owned By Son's Wife's Mother.

TUCKER'S SPLENDID SPEECH

Roosevelt and King Edward Enthusiastic; Giles Jackson in Joint Debate With White.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., February 20.—The fact that John S. Wise, formerly of Virginia, but a resident of New York for some years, is opposing the government appropriation for an exposition in connection with the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of Jamestown, is creating considerable comment. Mr. Wise has written a letter to the Committee on Industrial Arts and Expositions, in which he urged as the most fitting manner in which to celebrate the ter-centenary, the purchase of Jamestown Island by the national government.

The island is the property of Mrs. Barney, that portion of it not owned by the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities. A daughter of Mrs. Barney is the wife of a son of Mr. Wise. Some remarks which could not be construed as entirely complimentary were made at the hearing, which the committee gave to representatives of the Exposition company yesterday, but, on motion of Representative Maynard, they were expunged from the record.

The hearing yesterday developed several facts, which were not incorporated in the report I wired The Times-Dispatch last night, as the session of the committee was quite lengthy. The speech of President Tucker was especially "meaty," and evidently impressed the committee most favorably. The same is true of the statement made to the committee by Mr. Wool, counsel for the exposition company, and by Mr. Barton Myers, the auditor.

Wants a Grand Display.
President Tucker said the President had told him he wanted the military and naval contingents of the exposition to be most elaborate, so as to make the grandest spectacle of its kind in the history of the world. He said Mr. Roosevelt is about as enthusiastic a man over the exposition as he has yet met.

He said further that King Edward seemed to take the liveliest personal interest in the matter, and had full assurance that the exposition would be the King and his Cabinet would be carried out in every particular.

Speaking of the relative size of the military and naval contingents the various powers would send, Mr. Tucker said that the representations of the military establishments of the various powers would be very much smaller than those of the naval establishments. He said that wherever he had gone he found a general feeling against sending soldiers to foreign soil, and that idea was not nearly so popular as the one of sending all of the available forces.

Exposition Finances.
The most important development of the hearings, was the persistent inquiry of Chairman Gardner and others into the finance and prospects of the exposition.

This inquiry covered the question of receipts and expenditures as well as the plans of financing the exposition. Auditor Myers stated that the capital stock of the company consisted of $500,000 of common, and $250,000 of preferred stock. He said that the preferred stock was little more than non-recorded bonds on the exposition providing that the holders should be entitled to five per cent. dividends. He said the holders of common should realize anything. In return for this concession the preferred stock was to have no voting power.

Mr. Myers stated that the subscriptions for the organization of the company held the railroads to the extent of $100,000, and that the land companies in and adjacent to Norfolk, had taken approximately $100,000 of each class of stock.

He said practically all the members of the organization of the company held the railroads to the extent of $100,000, and that the land companies in and adjacent to Norfolk, had taken approximately $100,000 of each class of stock. He said that the holders of common should realize anything. In return for this concession the preferred stock was to have no voting power.

An Objection.
At this juncture Mr. Pollard, a member of the committee, stated that he personally did not like the idea; that if they were to be used in the payment of indebtedness it would result in a loss of one-half of the fund that they would have to the treasury, and that on every one that came back the government would have to pay out forty cents. Mr. Gilbert,

Don't Dose the Stomach

Cure Catarrh by Breathing Hyomel.

There is one treatment for nasal catarrh which is based upon common sense, and at the same time, is thoroughly scientific.

Hyomel is not a cure-all; it is a specific for the cure of catarrhal troubles. Breathing through the nasal pocket inhales that comes with every outflow, the aromatic healing of Hyomel penetrates to the most remote part of the nose, throat, and lungs, killing all inflammation and killing the germ which causes the trouble. The complete Hyomel outfit sells for $1, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest-pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomel. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if more Hyomel is needed, extra bottles can be obtained for 50 cents.

It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that treats the disease without stomach dosing, applying medicine and healing where the disease germs are present.

Do not dose the stomach to cure nasal catarrh; breathe Hyomel. If you cannot obtain Hyomel of your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail, postage paid, on receipt of price. Write to-day for free sample bottle and consultation blank that will entitle you to services of our medical department without charge. The Hyomel Company, Hyomel Building, Ithaca, N. Y.

Apollinaris

"THE QUEEN OF TABLE WATERS."

Bottled only at the Apollinaris Spring, Neuenahr, Germany, and Only with its Own Natural Gas.

another member of the committee, said that he had been in favor of this feature of the bill, but that if they proposed to pay them out in settlement of accounts he would have to oppose it, and would seek to have the bill so amended as to prevent that sort of thing.

Mr. Maynard at this juncture stated that he was the sponsor of that feature of the bill, which had come to him through a member of the Indiana delegation in the House, who had stated to him that the plan was in turn given him by a constituent, and that he wanted to say that he had never thought of such methods of disposing of the coins as those suggested by Mr. Myers.

He said that his idea was to have as many sold at a premium to the coin collectors as possible, and the rest put in banks as collateral for loans, to be redeemed during the progress of the Exposition by the Exposition officials and sold as souvenirs to the visitors to the Fair.

Mr. Gilbert said that he wanted to identify the authorship of the coinage plan, and that Mr. Maynard was in error, that instead of coming from a constituent of Judge Crumpacker it had come from a woman whom he knew, and who was one of the best women in the world.

Mr. Maynard replied that he had had correspondence with the man he referred to and exhibited a coin which had been sent him by the man in elaboration of the suggestion.

And so the matter of authorship of the provision still remains a mystery. The only question on which all sides agreed was that the author was a Hoosier.

To Protect the United States.
Toward the end of the hearing Chairman Gardner asked Auditor Myers, who is also chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, whether, in view of the fact that he and the exposition people had confidence in their statement that the million two-dollar pieces would not be presented at the treasury of the United States for redemption, whether they would be willing to enter into an agreement with the United States to make good the difference between the bullion and the face value of each piece so presented. Mr. Myers thought a while, and then said that if there was some limit fixed at which such liability would cease he thought the exposition company would agree to do so.

At this juncture Mr. Maynard said he hoped that no such provision would be made; that he felt morally certain that there would be no occasion for it, and that it would simply be a source of trouble without any accruing benefits.

Mr. Gardner and others, however, favored a disposition to exact a condition from the exposition officials, and Mr. Myers stuck to his statement that he thought the Exposition Company would stand for such a safeguard to the government if it were essential to the incorporation of that feature into the law that finally passes the House.

Jackson vs. White.
The hearing closed with a passage at arms between Giles B. Jackson, the colored Richmond lawyer, and Rev. White of this city, who said that he was the assistant pastor of Shiloh Colored Baptist Church, that was as diverting and as exciting as an eyelash finish in a horse race. Giles said that he could have a little time. He said that he wanted to know whether that colored preacher over there was going to answer him, and that if he was he had nothing to say; that this preacher had been trying to get his scheme through Congress for the last several years, and failed, and was now running around dogging his heels when he himself had a meritorious thing to get through.

Committee-man Bartlett told Giles that he had better save those things for his rejoinder. It was finally arranged that Giles should have fifteen minutes to open and White ten to reply. Giles got a five-minute rejoinder. Such a debate as they had: Giles was just dead tired of this black man named White coming around dogging his heels, and he started out at the very first with a hammer fling at him a minute, and gradually warmed up to his subject. The stenographer got down to business and his hand seemed to be making some five hundred separate and distinct motions a minute, and the perspiration bubbled from every pore.

Giles said that he has a most meritorious project, and that White was trying to kill it all, because he could not get an appropriation for a home for colored folks in Washington. Just before the time for his rejoinder, he began to keep everybody else out of doing something. If he can't run himself he ought to get out of the race.

After some minutes of violent throwing at the coal black face of White, Giles was admonished to address himself to the question. With profuse apologies to the committee he said that he thought this home for poor negroes proposed by White was no good. "Why," he exclaimed, "when a negro is poor he ain't got anything to travel to Washington on."

Want Jim Crow Show.
He then said that Boston negroes were opposed to the exposition because they thought it was going to be a Jim Crow show.

"That is what I like about it," he exclaimed. "We want a Jim Crow show. We want to show the white folks what we can do. We want to show them how we have gotten along. They tell us that we ought not to do anything. I have said that there is no means of separating the bad niggers from the good ones."

At this point again Giles was going at a rate that did not leave opportunity to slow down to any colored people, but he got back to the coal and to the good old Southern word "nigger."

After his fifteen minutes had expired, during which time he had also admonished Chairman Gardner that the latter didn't know anything about the nigger, since he had come from a place where they didn't see one more than once a month, Giles was asked to hurry in his rapid oratory so that Rev. White could have his say.

White got up, and in that cold, deliberate way that characterizes a Northern negro person when opening his sermon, he enumerated his objections to Giles's plan. They were "firstly," secondly," and so on to the climax, which was that the people had no plans except to spend the money, and that it was not safe to turn $250,000 over to a colored corporation responsible to no one.

After he had gotten through Giles was holding over. With clenched fists he declared that they would spend the money right.

Advisory Committee. He can tell us how to spend it. And then there is Booker Washington, not to say anything of his humble servant, Giles B. Jackson, who has a little responsibility, too."

After Giles had finished through the committee went into executive session, everybody laughing at the joint debate they had heard between Giles and White. Chairman Gardner observed after the meeting that he wished the stenographer could have got Giles down in dialect, that he thought it would be a great contribution to the literature of his race, fit for exhibition at the proposed exposition in whose behalf it was made.

But there was really a great deal of horse-sense in what Giles said, and when the committee goes to boll down his speech there will be found a solid residuum of sound argument.

DENIAL IS MADE BY BALTIMORE & OHIO
(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, February 20.—The Senate listened for three or four hours today to a discussion of the details of the pure food bill. A number of minor amendments were suggested, but under the agreement to vote on all amendments tomorrow none of them could be acted on today.

Mr. Rayner presented, by request, a reply from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company to the charge of discrimination made against it by the Red Rock Fuel Company, of West Virginia. The communication was signed by Vice-President Bond, who declared that there had been no discrimination; that the Red Rock Company was the largest and most powerful creditor of the railroad, and that the company was not to be treated as a special privilege.

Mr. Bond said that to comply with the Red Rock Company's demands would require special switching service for twenty miles each way, and that the coal company was informed that until the railroad company could enlarge its equipment it could not provide special service to develop new coal territory.

Mr. Bond further said: "The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company is not a stockholder in any coal company, large or small, located in the vicinity of or on the line of the railroad. The company is not a stockholder in the Fairmont district. It has for many years owned a majority of the stock of the Consolidation Coal Company, a Maryland corporation.
